Subject: Hold On To God:

It is not good for a nation to become prosperous and forget God. When a nation becomes proud, it is against God, because the word of God teaches against pride. Prosperity with pride will eventually bring a nation down. Pride of a nation causes hypocrisy to be in the worship services of church folk, resulting to infidelity being in their relationship with God.

God can only be honored and worshipped in the spirit of humility. If we fail to humble ourselves and turn our hearts toward God, the terrors of this age will consume us. If a nation is to survive, God requires that we submit ourselves to His will. Many people in our nation have submitted themselves to money. We have our minds on money. When you put your trust in money to the extent that you allow it to be your God, then your silver and gold are cankered, and the rust of it shall be a witness against you.

If we don't turn to God, our judgment will become warped, and we will become so greedy for filthy lucre that we will go down in shame. However, a rainbow is appearing for those who hold on to God's name, in the midst of a nation that forgets God. God will never allow His people who are faithful and true to go down with the wicked. When you obey God, you will have all you need in this present world to go through life honestly and uprightly. Except your purpose in life be constructed around the righteousness of Christ, your hope will be vain, and your prosperity will not last.

Subject: What Makes A Successful President:

In order for the people of a nation to get help from God, the government of their nation must be in accord and in harmony with the government of heaven. The government of heaven operates in the spirit of holiness. Holiness is sometimes difficult to understand, so God sent Jesus to the earth to give the people of the earth an understanding of how holiness operates.

Holiness is first, and foremost unselfish. God's holiness was extended to the earth in a very unselfish way. Though the people of the earth are derived from a culture of sin, God extended His holiness to the earth by blessing the earth with the necessary resources for survival. The air that we breathe, the water that we drink, the food that we eat, and regulation of seasonal climates are all given to the earth because God is unselfish.

When the government makes laws for the people of a nation, the laws must be made for the purpose of extending more benefits to the people rather than for government officials. If this is done properly, and in the interest of the people under consideration, then the government of such a nation will be in harmony with the government of heaven. This is why Franklin D. Roosevelt was such a successful president.

Subject: The Kind Of Leader The People Of A Nation Gets Depends On The Kind Of People They Are:

God does not necessarily give the rulership of a nation to a good man. If the people of the nation have been wicked, then God will give the people an evil leader. When the nation of Israel rejected Samuel the prophet as being their leader and decided that they wanted a king like other nations, God gave them King Saul. King Saul led the nation of Israel to have heavy tax burdens, and led them to one defeat after the other from their enemies. When an evil leader gets the rulership of a nation it is because God wants the people to suffer.

Subject: The Choice Is Made By God:

King Saul was the first King of Israel. When Saul got to the place where he thought his way was best, and God didn't have to be obeyed in everything that he wanted to do, Saul became defiant of God's rule and established his own way of doing things. So, God rejected Saul and prepared to set up another king who was David. It was from the sons of Jesse that God had planned to raise up another man to rule in Saul's place.

When God wants a ruler for the people of a nation, He seeks and finds whom He desires and puts him up to rule. When the ruler rejects God's commandments, God rejects him and raises up another ruler. We may think that we are electing a president for our nation, but unless our choice is God's choice, the man will be rejected.

Whether most people realize it or not God rules the minds of every person on earth, and God can make the people vote for who He chooses to be the president. Such people will think that they are making their own choice for president, but God can rule their minds without them realizing it. A candidate for president would be wise to please God more so than the people since God has power to install them more than the people do.

Subject:   God Is Interested In The Welfare Of The People Who Desire To Obey Him:

Good people, may I say to you that God ruleth in the kingdom of men and He setteth up over it whom He pleases, directing their course to the end that His common purpose might develop and materialize to the good of the people. When a man is raised up to rule over a nation, if he doesn't watch the devil, he will make him think that he wants to rule the world and will start wars as Hitler did. However, all world leaders who fail to adhere to the words that God commands will come down from their positions of rulership, and be replaced. God is interested in the welfare of the people who desire to obey Him. The leaders that are set up to rule such people must be interested in the welfare of the people also.
